

B. B. DIRECTORS GIVE UP POSTS

Vice President, Secretary and Director Claim Club Improperly Handled

At a meeting of the directors of the Ogden Baseball club of the Northern Utah league held at the office of Mayor Frank Francis this morning the resignations of three of the directors were accepted. Lack of harmony and inefficient management of the club was given by the three as the reason for their resignations.

Jesse S. Richards, vice president and director, Al Warden, secretary and director, and Al Hestmark, director, are the men who tendered their resignations.

The resignations were accepted and the three former directors and officers relieved of all financial responsibility.

The resignations of William V. Rockefeller, director and Harry Hule, director, were tendered but action was deferred until the forepart of the coming week.

"Lack of management and harmony led to the resignation," said Al Hestmark today. "Some of the directors of the club have not been entirely satisfied with the manner in which affairs have been handled and for that reason desired to be relieved as directors."

"The directors who have tendered their resignations, however, are anxious to see baseball continue in Ogden and express desire that affairs during the remainder of the season will be handled more efficiently."

President Warren C. Binford announced at the meeting that the club will pay all salaries of players to date.

William Rockefeller and Mayor Frank Francis named as a committee of two to confer with the president of all of the civic clubs of Ogden and obtain a representative from each club to serve on the board.

This plan was suggested by Gus Wright, one of the directors of the 1921 club.

No men were named to succeed the three directors.

KIWANISANS PAY VISIT TO OGDEN

Harold Packer Sets Forth Aims on Inter-city Relations

Members of the Ogden Kiwanis club motored to Logan yesterday afternoon where, as guests of the Logan Kiwanis club, they assumed charge of the program at the weekly luncheon of the Logan Kiwanis club held at the Eccles hotel last evening.

After singing America, a meeting was turned over to Ogden visitors. Harold J. Packer, chairman of the Ogden committee on inter-city relations, presided and introduced visitors. The principal speakers were:

John Culley, president of the Ogden club; A. M. Merrill, principal of the Ogden high school.

Leslie Saville, accompanied on the piano by Henry Volker, sang two songs. Other songs from Kiwanis song book.

A unique stunt of the Logan members was the singing of a song of welcome, of their own composition, in which the first names of all the Ogden members were used in rhyme.

Following Ogden members attended: John Culley, David J. Wilson, J. W. McLaughlin, George J. Kelly, Bert Treeder, Dr. E. P. Miller, L. A. Garrison, A. M. Merrill, J. Oswald Jackson, David Jensen, Jack Reeve, G. A. Goates, Charles Iverson, F. A. Hulsh, Lew Hains, Joseph M. Tracy, Godfrey Matthews, Leslie Saville, Henry Volker, and Harold J. Packer.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Packer said:

"This meeting, I may say, is really the first reciprocal inter-city meeting of Kiwanians in the state of Utah. It is but the beginning of a movement inaugurated by the Ogden Kiwanis club to visit every other Kiwanis club in the state and to have the other clubs visit the Ogden club, with the purpose of becoming better acquainted with Kiwanians in other cities, learning something of the activities of other clubs and perhaps not altogether concealing our own light under a bushel."

In furtherance of what we conceive to be one of the purposes of Kiwanis and which well supports the with the adoption of the chairman of the international committee on inter-city relations in his report submitted to the recent international convention of Kiwanis at Toronto.

CO-OPERATION IS ESSENTIAL—In all such organizations as Kiwanis, Rotary and other civic as well as fraternal societies, one of the prime requisites is co-operation. It is realized that an organization, a group of men, can accomplish more in a particular line of endeavor than can an isolated individual. If it is good for the world to have individuals associate themselves with others and work with them in a civic organization such as Kiwanis, each member aiding and assisting the other in one common purpose, all striving to reach a wisely chosen goal, all working for the good of a particular community, how much more good our state, for instance, by the Kiwanis clubs of Utah becoming better informed as to the conditions obtaining in the different sections and by uniting in their efforts for the good of all of our various communities. It can be done, fellow Kiwanians by or may venture the prediction here that after each of the Kiwanis clubs in our state has had an opportunity of visiting and being visited by every other club Kiwanis in Utah will take great strides forward, benefiting not only Kiwanians, but the entire citizenry.

After the Kiwanis party, John Culley, W. McLaughlin, Bert Treeder and Harold Packer, visited the new Logan lodge of Elks, and made brief talks on Elksdom.

AVIATOR LOST IN FOREST FIRE

Calls for More Men Sent Out to Fight Serious Blazes

SEATTLE, Wash., July 8.—Roy Jones, a Ketchikan, Alaska, aviator who hopped off here Friday afternoon for Bellingham, Wash., was missing today. It was feared he was lost in the smoke and haze of the forest fires prevalent in western Washington. Under ordinary conditions the trip to Bellingham would have taken him less than two hours.

Calls for additional men to fight forest fires were being filed today by timber protective agencies of every county in Western Washington.

While cooler weather Friday decreased the impetus with which the flames had been spreading, the volume of reports from every forested area of the state had aroused timber owners and state authorities to the peril and crews were being augmented with all the men available.

Reported to State Forester Fred E. Page late Friday night indicated that no new hazards of consequence developed Friday, although a number which had originated during the preceding days, gained momentum which threatened to break from all possibility of control and to eat their way into stands of very best timber.

Timber owners also have added their men to the fighters.

DESTRUCTION FOLLOWS VICTORIA, B. C., July 8.—Vancouver island forest fires continued burning today with new impetus when the Comox joined with one burning out of Miniza, wreaking destruction on forests hitherto untouched. With the wind at high velocity Friday night, the fighting became a hopeless task, although every available man on the island was in the service.

Logging railroads in the line of flames have been burned out and the settlement of Campbell river was brought into the danger zone today. Six families were homeless as the result of the fire which destroyed the Lane Bay settlement Friday night.

LIGHTNING CAUSES FIRES SPOKANE, Wash., July 8.—Whether Friday night's rain with its lightning accompaniment checked, or aggravated forest fires in this district was an open question today.

According to forest authorities, the lightning adds to the number of fires each time, unless followed by a heavy downpour. Friday night's rain was quite light in and about Spokane and was preceded by a 30-mile an hour wind. Spokane had been without rain for 29 successive days.
